ECONOMICS & REVOLUTION – PART XXII

There is an emerging World Order near at hand. Its proponents are becoming bolder, - and many of them truly believe that they are building a better world. These, have been indoctrinated by the Prince of this world into believing the lie. Others however operate behind the scenes, with greater awareness of the monstrous society they are building.

POWERS BEHIND THRONES

“Some...believe we are part of a secret cabal working against the best interests of the United States, characterizing my family and me as ‘internationalists’ and of conspiring...to build a more integrated global political and economic structure – one world, if you will. If that is the charge, I stand guilty, and am proud of it”. [David Rockefeller, from his autobiography]¹

So who’s for this thing, - this One World Government? Well, we see that David Rockefeller has made no secret of his intentions. We’ll trace some of the, - let us say, - interesting Rockefeller connections over the years of the last century. Yet there are others that will make this oil-rich family seem relative newcomers to the project. Some of those involved may surprise you. First, we’ll begin by looking at some recent headlines that reveal just how pervasive the influence of this economic, political, and yes religious ‘cabal’ may range. So let’s begin on the economic front.

The Recent Past

In the last days of the second Bush Administration, the Federal Reserve found itself involved in a seemingly mad and losing battle to both jump start the American economy while maintaining the value of the dollar. At least that is the appearance of their actions. But increasing numbers of economic experts were pointing out that the problems are systemic in nature and much more globally seated than is being readily admitted. We would do well to remember that the Fed is made up of the banking interests of this country, - tied into the international banking interests, - operating in their own interests around the world. It’s important to keep that in mind, as we watch the story unfold. Now put this in background as well: As we’ve seen, there are international economic forces who want to replace the ‘almighty dollar’ with a single global currency. One economist in the movement writes that it is not “whether the world will adopt a Single Global Currency, but When?”. Morrison Bonpasse believes that it is inevitable and necessary, no matter how “rough, costly and chaotic will the journey be”.² Another, Robert Mundell, opines that “a global single currency could not be achieved without a global government”.³ As we’ve seen before, it seems that these one-worlders are ready to see any sacrifice, - as long as its ours, - to achieve their globalist dream.

So we can be thankful for the enlightening candid remarks of Paul Craig Roberts, the Father of Reaganomics, who sees the plunging value of the dollar as endangering the entire international economy. According to Roberts, by driving up inflation, the Fed’s rate cut will exacerbate the weakness of the dollar as the world’s reserve currency. His long term prognosis is dire indeed. If he is correct the decline of the dollar will see the end of America as a Superpower. He sees a gradual but inevitable economic decline, much like what Britain faced after WWII, when the pound dropped 80% in value and its world empire imploded. The conservative economist believes the defense budget will have to be halved and American companies will have to keep jobs in the domestic market rather than moving them overseas.⁴ At least one major Canadian economist sees the same danger at the falling US dollar which is negatively impacting that country’s ability to export goods to its biggest trading partner, the US. His solution: A Canadian currency pegged to the value of the American dollar; - in other words, the back door route to a Continental currency.⁵

At the same time, on the political front, there's this headline in the New Zealand Herald: "Brown's secret talks on 'new world order'". The story in that paper, detailed the fact that the British Prime Minister had begun "secret talks", with world leaders promoting a "new world order" and "global society". Specifically, Brown was seeking an expansion of the UN Security Council to 10 nations. Currently, the Council's permanent membership consists of the US, Russia, Britain, France & China. The nations to be added are Germany, Japan, Brazil, India and South Africa. The Herald correctly draws the connection with the 10 kingdoms that will give power to the Antichrist; - describing the arrangement as the "New World Order of 10 kingdomers". In addition, Brown lobbied for the creation of a UN Rapid Reaction Force, - to intervene in "failed states", thereby imposing the international will.⁶ In the end, this attempt did not succeed, yet it all sounds like world government to me! In many ways the coming new order is not an artificial construct, but reflects an emerging balance of power. In 2008 Washington opted to become India's "nuclear partner" despite its record of treaty breaking in that area. Many believe that both China and India will supplant America as the dominant world power within 30 years.⁷ They are fast becoming the "kings from the East" of Revelation 16:12. Thus, the drive toward world government on the part of the Anglo-American elites is but an attempt to harness this new reality.

Finally, remember that according to both Scripture and New Age plans: The coming global government is to combine control of economics, politics and religion. That third peg, religion, was addressed by an unlikely source, President Ahmadinejad of Iran. In the past, 'The Big Mahmoud', has called for the religious unification of the world under Islam. This time he stated that "Man is created to be a global creature" and "all divine religions are global", while calling for "the rule of single law in the entire world". It was after that that his words became eerily prophetic, as he spoke of "a single perfect and noble human being", who would come to "take charge of a global government".⁸ He was speaking of course about the anticipated coming of the Mahdi, who according to Islamic writings is to return with a faux Jesus (Issa), set up his headquarters in Jerusalem and kill-off the Jews and Christians who will not submit to Islam, - the religion of peace. Of course this Islamic messiah - as we've made the case before - is but the Antichrist by another name. So advances, - this notion of total global control...on all fronts.

The Players

As we've documented in detail throughout the series, the forces driving this movement, - pulling everything together - the 'big players', - the would-be kingdomers, - are the moneyed elites. As we look at this we'll do well to heed the old adage: "Follow the money!". Today, such billionaires as Bill Gates, Ted Turner, George Soros and Maurice Strong are all willing to put vast sums of money into building the 'perfect society' of their own peculiar dreams. [Interesting that none of those dreams seems to have a place for the God of the Bible! In fact, Turner's dream is such that it would banish The Great God Jehovah to the ash heap of history. I digress.] In modern American terms it all began with steel magnate Andrew Carnegie, who, in 1901, sold off his empire to JP Morgan and undertook a crusade for world peace. Today, the mantle of chief peace crusader probably falls collectively on the Rockefeller Family and their trusts. Gary Allen, author of the Rockefeller File, developed extensive evidence that "the major Rockefeller goal today is the creation of a 'New World Order', - a one world government that would control all of mankind".⁹ To achieve that end, the Rockefeller's have been moving on many fronts, - not least of which is the sphere of organized religion.

Now John D Rockefeller Senior was not the source of this familial international interest. Senior was a committed Baptist and his Christianity drove his charitable instincts. He was all about changing people's thinking and so supported many educational causes. It was his son, (to be referred to here as Junior), that became the family's first globalist, - and who adopted as his means the cause of unified religion.¹⁰ It began in earnest in the years following WWI, with something called the Interchurch World Movement, and exists today as the World Council of Churches. The motivating ethic behind Rockefeller involvement was the plan to "urge the Christian churches to get behind programs for world governance".¹¹ Despite the fact that the Bible warns that religious unity will only be achieved during the Tribulation under the False Prophet, (see Revelation 13), many churches, - especially the mainline denominations rushed to get on board. The mainline denominations that jumped on Rockefeller's unity-train did so, to a large part, because they were in the process of rejecting Biblical truth in favor of something called 'higher criticism', wherein man judges the veracity of the Scriptures based on his own reason. They split from Biblical literalism, and fundamentalism, - in the process rejecting essential doctrines such as the deity of Jesus, the Resurrection and the virgin birth. They replaced scriptural faith with a social gospel that emphasized the works of man rather than God in achieving a kingdom here on earth. Increasingly reducing the gospel to its least common denominator, they became the backbone of an ecumenical movement that seeks unity despite essential doctrinal differences. More importantly to Junior Rockefeller, they became part of the globalist movement. Believing this religion to be more important than even the League of Nations being birthed at that time, - the younger Rockefeller asked his father for 50 to 100 million dollars to get it off the ground. (And that's back when $50 million could still buy some stuff.) He used the lawyer, Raymond B Fosdick as his point man in this internationalist crusade. His brother was the New York clergyman Charles Emerson Fosdick. Rockefeller financed his ministry for decades. The Rev Fosdick once offered this prediction. "I predict, a man will rise by whose hands a federation of the world will be so effected, and wars so stopped thereby, that his name will go down across the centuries... That man will come. Some day he will arise."¹² [He's right of course. But his end will come when he is tossed into the Lake of Fire, - not a very auspicious way to end a career.]

Now with Rockefeller money behind it, and a brand new theology to inspire, the liberal, one-world-minded, religious establishment began to campaign for a planet-wide earthly kingdom. Even the American Baptist Publication Society put out a book by one Zane Batten calling for "World Federation", and "Internationalism" as "a religion, before it can be a reality". The One World Religion then was supposed to serve as the vehicle that would unite the globe. Funny, that's just how the Bible says it will play out, - with the False Prophet pointing the way to the worship of, - and total acquiescence to the Antichrist. By the 1940's, the successor organization to the Interchurch World Movement, - the Federal Council of Churches, - was calling for a radical new world order. Peace would only come, said they, with; - "world government", the end of American isolationism, "limitations on national sovereignty", "International control of all armies & navies", a world currency, 'worldwide freedom of immigration' and totally free trade. This became their inter-church creed. It echoes like the exact blueprint of the Tribulation kingdom of Antichrist laid out in Scripture.¹³

Jump to today and we can see the pattern of a steady, incremental – still very quiet surge – toward a global religious understanding. The United Nations Alliance of Civilizations (UNAOC) is one such attempt to bridge the gap between cultures and religions. According to their mission statement, one of their goals is "amplifying voices of moderation and reconciliation which help calm cultural and religious tensions between nations and peoples."¹⁴ A noble aim, it would seem, until we realize that it is a hyper-tolerance that will drive the formation of the religious empire of the False Prophet during the Tribulation. Back in 2008 Saudi King Abdullah was actively pushing an interfaith agenda that would put in place a global law against blasphemy. As the Christian Science Monitor correctly pointed out at the time, this was "a campaign championed by the 56-member Organization of Islamic Conference that puts the rights of religions ahead of individual liberties...The lofty-sounding principle is, in fact, a cleverly coded way of granting religious leaders the right to criminalize speech and activities that they deem to insult religion. Instead of promoting harmony, however, this effort will exacerbate divisions and intensify religious repression."¹⁵ At present these attempts are nothing, if not clumsy. Yet the global PTB that advance such causes continue in their search to find ways to paper over the very real faith differences between the various religious cultures. Take for instance the writings of Imam Faisal Abdul Rauf. He's the mastermind behind the attempt to build what has become known as the Ground Zero Mosque. His radical ties aside, judging from his words alone, you would think that he was the picture of reasonableness, sweetness and light. The threat, according to Rauf, is not Radical Islamic terrorists / suicide bombers but the "common threat [is] Radicalism, which exists in all religions...the real battlefront is not between Muslims and non-Muslims – the real battle front is between moderates and extremists." Islamic author Mohammed Jamil explains that all the tension and turmoil is due to an unjust 'economic order'. And 'interfaith harmony' is the key to its solution.¹⁶ What is most disturbing in all of this is the growing willingness of nominal Christians to embrace a kind of de-facto universalism that says that there are many ways to God. We saw that last week as we looked at the weak Gospel presentations of known and respected Christian leaders. Now, one Seattle area church is reaching out to Imams connected with the Council on American-Islamic Relations. CAIR is an organization, that while claiming to represent the 'moderate' middle ground in the American Muslim community, has been found to have connections to known terrorist groups and is an unindicted co-conspirator in a massive terrorism funding scam.¹⁷ But Truth is easily trumped by Tolerance in today's world.

This investment of Rockefeller money – in subverting and altering the most basic beliefs of the professing Christian community - has paid off very well. The TRUE Christian faith has been infiltrated and supplanted. It is invested with doctrines that neither Christ nor Paul would recognize. Yet even the Rockefeller's didn't operate alone. The fellow travelers on the broad road to planetary consolidation are many. It's not just the moneyed elite leading that charge. They are abetted by the worldwide socialist movement that is "subverting the sovereignty of all nations".¹⁸ Even in America, the home of democracy, the one-worlders and socialists are in open league under the leadership of a combination of 'true believers' and – (this in their terms now) – "useful idiots." Taken together, they make for a network of strange bedfellows, all working toward the same dark end. This is the force that lies behind the revolutionary ethic that is storming through our country and our planet. Just like the Bible says, it is an amalgamation of religious, economic and political forces. "This is the spirit of the antichrist, which you have heard is coming and even now is already in the world." (1John 4:3)

PUSHING IRAN'S BUTTONS

WARFARE – 21ST CENTURY STYLE! Iran came under “full-scale cyber terror attack last weekend.” While the US and Israel have been debating the wisdom of taking out the Iranian nuclear facilities before Tehran gets a homegrown nuclear capability, someone – [now who could that be?] – has hacked into Iranian computer systems wreaking havoc on military and industrial systems – including their Supervisory Control and Data Acquisition systems. Western sources believe that Iranian nuclear facilities have been infected by the still-mutating virus. Iran is threatening military retaliation against the West.¹⁹ Mmmm! [Do you recall a series this newsletter ran back at the beginning of the year called CONSPIRACIES & REALITIES? According to information revealed in that series, a former ranking British Military Officer and current high stakes banker stumbled on a plan to bring the world to a war in the Middle East between Israel and Iran. It spoke cryptically at the time of efforts to bring Iran to attack Israel...I'm just saying!]

AL QAEDA ALERT

European security forces are on high alert against al-Qaeda suicide attacks across the continent. The threats were discovered by French, Algerian, Moroccan and US military intelligence sources. They are preparing for assassination attempts and mass casualty events against such targets as department stores or public transport. High alert status was declared for London's Heathrow Airport as well as airports in Amsterdam, Moscow, Berlin and Rome.²⁰

SCARY STUFF

The 4th Amendment to the Constitution – a part of the Bill of Rights – guarantees “The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures”, without a warrant issued by a court. Now, the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals has issued a ruling that shakes Americans 4th Amendment rights to the core. Right now it applies to California and eight other states out west. According to the court, you have no right to a reasonable expectation of privacy in your own driveway. Therefore, agents of the government can slip on to your property and attach a GPS tracking device to your vehicle – as it sits in said driveway – tracking you wherever you go.²¹ And you've just got to live with it. Again, they don't even need to go through the warrant process. Welcome to Amerika – the home of the free!

SCARY STUFF TOO

It doesn't stop there. The Obama administration is seeking to give the FBI the authority to force internet providers to provide records of an individual's activities on the internet without having to resort to that warrant thingy again. [Am I detecting a pattern here?] The investigating agents would just have to – in the words of the Washington Post – “deem the information relevant to a terrorism or intelligence investigation.”²²

SCARY STUFF THREE

The United States Government has been buying up white box vans outfitted with drive-by x-ray capability for use on America's streets. The surveillance technology is capable of seeing through walls – and clothes. And of course they don't bother with warrants either. Coming soon to a street near you! They're already being deployed – by both the American military in Iraq and Afghanistan as well as by domestic law enforcement agencies.^{23 24}

DON'T FORGET

The HISTORY OF THE FUTURE PROPHECY CONFERENCE – BUFFALO – 2010 will be coming to My Father's House Church – Elma, NY – on November 12th & 13th. Plan to be there. It's an event you won't want to miss!
