SPEARHEAD OF A REVOLUTION

Rob Palaszewski – A Commentary

The visuals take me back to when I was growing up during the 60's. I didn't quite know what to make of it then. Now I hope I see a little clearer; judge with a little more accuracy. But you have the same elements. There are mottled protestors in the streets – violating laws, camping out, challenging the system. The visual image is the same nearly 50 years after they first seared my brain. You have blue-clad burly police types pictured with billy-clubs and helmets – confronted by rock-throwing bearded-long-haired types. There are drum circles and dancing hippies. Added to this group is a smattering of blue-collar workers, students lamenting the size of their student loans in light of the failing dreams as the economy falls - and of course, the “Legalize Marijuana” crowd. There are confrontations. Protestors are wrestled to the ground. Arrests are made. There is little unified purpose. It is rather a pot-pourri of Leftist causes.¹ It makes for great street theater. And perhaps that at its essence – is what it is: Street Theater serving as the entre to revolution.

Last week's events included a march on the New York Stock exchange by about 500 people. There were arrests. It was reported that some police rode their scooters directly at the protestors to drive them away. An NYPD official described how “protesters who sat down or stood in the street obstructing traffic, others who tuned over trash baskets, knocked over a police scooter and hurled bottles,” were the ones taken into custody.²

Perhaps what unites them is the anti-capitalist ethic. All things of the status quo are suspect. Roseanne Barr squeals a sympathetic diatribe that calls for the beheading of very richest that will not repent of their ways. She called for “reeducation camps”, the return of excess wealth and said: “I am in favour of the return of the guillotine and that is for the worst of the worst of the guilty.”³ For those unfamiliar with the terms: ‘Reeducation camps’ is the term used by the brutal communist regimes for concentration camps in which anyone who disagreed with them was force-fed the party-line in a form of systematized indoctrination. Think: Viet Nam after the fall of Saigon. And guillotines: Well those were just the killing machines of the French Revolution, used to lop the heads off of suspected enemies of the revolution. Ah, but all in the name of ‘Liberty, Equality, Fraternity. So I guess that's OK!

The protests which began on September 17th have been constant ever since. It's called Occupy Wall Street and has spread to several American municipalities and claims offshoots in London as well as at least 14 Canadian cities. On Saturday, October 15, the European unrest was officially joined – in solidarity – to its North American cousin. Hundreds of thousands marched throughout Europe. In Rome, things got ugly. Here's the report of AP's Allesandro Rizzo.

“Heavy smoke billowed in downtown Rome as a small group broke away and wreaked havoc in streets close to the Colosseum and elsewhere in the city. Clad in black with their faces covered, protesters threw rocks, bottles and incendiary devices at banks and Rome police in riot gear. With clubs and hammers, they destroyed bank ATMs, set trash bins on fire and assaulted at least two news crews from Sky Italia. Riot police charged the protesters repeatedly, firing water cannons and tear gas. Around 70 people were injured, according to news reports, including one man who tried to stop the protesters from throwing bottles....In the city's St. John in Lateran square, police vans came under attack, with protesters hurling rocks and cobblestones and smashing the vehicles. Fleeing the violence, peaceful protesters stormed up the steps outside the Basilica, one of the oldest in Rome.”⁴

In fairness, I must report that not all of the protesters turned violent. Some tried to stop the outbreak, others yelled: “Shame!” – but to little effect. And don’t think that violence will necessarily remain ‘over there’; that it’s a foreign thing – or that it ‘can’t happen here’. There are those who are already preaching its inclusion in the American brand of these protests. Here are the words of one speaker at the ‘Occupy LA’ protests. He was evidently responding to an earlier protest leader who described the movement as being ‘non-violent’: And he took exception to that characterization.

“One of the speakers said the solution is nonviolent movement. No, my friend. I’ll give you two examples: French Revolution, and Indian so-called Revolution. Gandhi, Gandhi today is, with respect to all of you, Gandhi today is a tumor that the ruling class is using constantly to mislead us. French Revolution made fundamental transformation. But it was bloody. India, the result of Gandhi, is 600 million people living in maximum poverty. So, ultimately, the bourgeoisie won’t go without violent means. Revolution! Yes, revolution that is led by the working class. Long live revolution! Long live socialism!” His remarks drew generous cheers from the assembled.⁵

Elsewhere on the Left Coast, the Occupiers of Portland added their own special ‘Amen’, as a disheveled rock band that included “a jester hat-wearing guitarist, shirtless drummer and heavily bearded, long-haired bassist” – along with other assorted ‘characters’ – led the crowd in singing “F the USA”.⁶

The interesting part about this phenomenon is that it is at its root supported by a philosophy, if you will, that sports a mass of contradictions. The groups that are attracted to this movement – as opposed to say the Tea Party – are decidedly more leftist in orientation – but shares some common borders with the conservative Tea Party movement among libertarians. As columnist Vox Day points out, there is a legitimacy to some of their concerns. The Occupiers have some justifiable beefs against Wall Street excesses. However, it is looking to the government in Washington to side with the people and make things right. For his part, the President, for the political purpose of his own reelection, is somewhat disingenuously signaling a sympathy for the protests. Little do the Occupiers realize that Washington and Wall Street are allies in the process. Mr Day tells us that yes, “there are two sides to American politics, they are not the two sides that most people commonly believe. The real political divide is not between Republicans and Democrats or between red-state America and blue-state America; it is between the Washington-Wall Street axis and the rest of the American people. And the two political parties are not in opposition to each other. They are instead allies in the bifactional ruling party that governs the nation on behalf of the Washington-Wall Street axis of pure evil.”⁷

That is a sentiment with which I heartily agree. That relationship that marries financial and political power is as natural as it is dangerous. And combined with religious control, it will be at the center of the Antichrist’s Empire. Even in the US, it has long been in place. President Franklin Roosevelt wrote to Colonel House in 1933: “The real truth of the matter is, as you and I know, that a financial element in the large centers has owned the government of the U.S. since the days of Andrew Jackson.”⁸ Professor Carrol Quigley is the man that ‘The Establishment’ allowed to study the private papers of the CFR in order to compile a history. Here’s what he wrote in his famous work: Tragedy and Hope.

“The powers of financial capitalism had (a) far-reaching aim, nothing less than to create a world system of financial control in private hands able to dominate the political system of each country and the economy of the world as a whole. This system was to be controlled in a feudalist fashion by the central banks of the world acting in concert, by secret agreements arrived at in frequent meetings and conferences. The apex of the systems was to be the Bank for International Settlements in Basel, Switzerland; a private bank owned and controlled by the world’s central banks which were themselves private corporations. Each central bank...sought to dominate its government by its ability to control Treasury loans, to manipulate foreign exchanges, to influence the level of economic activity in the country, and to influence cooperative politicians by subsequent economic rewards in the business world.”⁹

Thus the financial / political cabal! But there is another even odder alliance that is involved here. My book, The History of the Future, (available at the website atpministry.com), makes that connection plain. It is the connection between the Powers-That-Be and the periodic revolutionary movements that rock our world. 'Big Money', uses not only governments – but also those movements that oppose government to achieve its ends. Here's how author Anthony Sutton summarized the point in his work: Wall Street and the Bolshevik Revolution. “There has been a continuing, albeit concealed, alliance between international political capitalists and international revolutionary socialists — to their mutual benefit....given the weaknesses of socialist central planning, the totalitarian socialist state is a perfect captive market for monopoly capitalists, if an alliance can be made with the socialist powerbrokers.”¹⁰ In another spot in the book he makes plain the connection. Sutton explains that it was President Wilson himself who arranged for the Russian Revolutionary Trotsky to get a passport and therefore “carry forward” the revolution.¹¹ In his book on the Federal Reserve, The Creature from Jekyll Island, G Edward Griffin tells us of the relationship that was in place during the revolution and that has continued to this day.

*“The top Communist leaders have never been as hostile to their counterparts in the West, as the rhetoric suggests. They are quite friendly to the world's leading financiers and have worked closely with them, when it suits their purposes. As we shall see in the following section, the Bolshevik revolution actually was financed by wealthy financiers in London and New York. Lenin and Trotsky were on the closest of terms with these moneyed interests both before and after the Revolution. Those hidden liaisons have continued to this day and occasionally pop to the surface, when we discover a David Rockefeller holding confidential meetings with a Mikhail Gorbachev in the absence of government sponsorship or diplomatic purpose.”*¹²

It seems that Wall Street / Big Banking interests not only financed the Bolsheviks but also their Monarchist opponents. Later on, the PTB tossed their money behind the rising star of Hitler. Some of that support even came through the good offices of the large international banking houses – those including the Warburgs and Schroeders – (both Jewish by nationality).^{13 14} The support for the revolutions crossed supposed ideological lines of left and right political parties. Thus it should be no surprise that money for this current round of revolutionary activity should come from a billionaire like George Soros. Here's the short version of the Soros connection. Soros funds the Tides Foundation. The Tides Center funds Adbusters, who it's reported, is the group that got the whole Occupy Movement going. The Tides Center is also connected to one David Fenton. Fenton Communications was behind the recent march on the home of the millionaires in New York. David Fenton worked for 60's radical and social revolutionary Bill Ayers. And both Ayers and Fenton served at Chicago's Wood's Foundation with President Obama.¹⁵ And it keeps going. Bill Ayers and Code Pink involved themselves supporting the Muslim Brotherhood in the Egyptian effort to bring down Mubarak.¹⁶ The spider-like network gathers strange bedfellows – and perhaps some not so strange ones, too. Now Stephen Lerner, the former head of the SEIU – on sabbatical from that union – is found to be the man behind the initial 'Days of Rage' that morphed into the Occupy Movement. Earlier, Lerner had explained that the purpose of the movement is to “collapse the system”. Simple like that! Code Pink is the group behind its current manifestation. Lerner's SEIU – coincidentally I'm sure – was also involved in the Egyptian troubles that brought down Mubarak. And there is this other crazy coincidence. Officials of the Obama administration met with Muslim Brotherhood reps – prior to the fall of President Mubarak...to discuss....of all thingsa post Mubarak Egypt.^{17 18 19}

So what are we to make of this whole Occupy Thingy? Well, it's organized – part of a movement – and in this writer's humble opinion – is THE ADVANCE GUARD OF AN ATTEMPT AT GLOBAL REVOLUTION. We have in their own words – the call for violent revolution. We must take them at those words. We've seen the first stirrings of violence. Their purpose is the destruction of the World System, replacing it with a New Order. Funny, that's the same goal that the PTB have. In fact the plan was laid out in the 2007 book that came out in Europe called The Coming Insurrection. That work provides the blueprint for the struggle to tear town capitalist civilization. Its prescribed tactics include strikes at the system during periods of crisis by a developed underground network of activists. (Mmmm! Sound familiar?) It's goals include “the physical blocking of the economy and of the annihilation of police forces.” Now the PTB also plan to overturn the system though without losing control of the situation. And perhaps that's the game: To allow...or engineer the chaos and offer the solution. After all, that's a revered Masonic motto: Ordo ab Chao. Order out of chaos. Why should they let a good crisis go to waste? For there is coming a day, Scripture tells us, that the peoples will cry out for ““Peace and safety!” then sudden destruction comes upon them, as labor pains upon a pregnant woman.” (1Thess5:3)

We are in a time of crisis – perhaps like none the nation has faced before. While the Civil War period and the era of the Revolutionary War and even the days of Depression and World War II were deep and troubling – at least the nation had a moral foundation on which to fall back. America has that no longer. We are a nation set morally adrift by our selfish adherence to the principle of pleasure. We’ve been blinded to the TRUTH by the oft-repeated maxim that there is NO TRUTH. We have fallen for the lie of the Enemy that we can be gods, indeed! America and even much of the Church has turned from the God of the Universe. In His place, many worship a god of their own making. Many Christian denominations have rejected the TRUTH of the Scripture in favor of their own teachings. [Even the first stirrings of this would-be-revolution - are just a sign of how very lost we are.] History shows that when Israel, God’s People, turned away from following the One True God, that He turned them over to their enemies. Can America expect any better fate? The Apostle Paul tells us in Romans 1:18: “For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, who suppress the truth in unrighteousness.” We too are ‘truth suppressors’. Here’s what Paul said of them just a few verses down. “although they knew God, they did not glorify Him as God, nor were thankful, but became futile in their thoughts, and their foolish hearts were darkened. Professing to be wise, they became fools...Therefore God also gave them up.” (Romans 1:21-22, 24)

So what to do? God gives us the answer. In 2Chronicles He gives the recipe for such an inevitable time of judgment. “When I shut up heaven and there is no rain, or command the locusts to devour the land, or send pestilence among My people, if My people who are called by My name will humble themselves, and pray and seek My face, and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin and heal their land. Now My eyes will be open and My ears attentive to prayer made in this place.” (2Chronicles 7:13-15)

**** **** **** ****

Lord that we would understand that You are God. That You are Holy! Lord we come humbly before You – rejecting our sin – turning from those ways – and seeking Your Face. Have mercy on us and our land – that we may lift You up and give You all the Glory. Lord save us from our own foolishness - and our own selfishness – melt our hearts and transform us by the renewing of our minds – that we may serve You . In Jesus Name!
